

PRESS RELEASE

Frankfurt/Main, 9/26/2016

Cocomore is the first German agency to receive the official Drupal 8 certification for developers

With the Acquia certification the specialists for marketing and IT once again prove their expertise regarding the Open Source CMS Drupal.

Drupal is a sought-after Content Management System (CMS) for companies because of its numerous advantages for the development of complex and dynamic web solutions. The latest version, Drupal 8, has been improved concerning usability, mobile-first, performance and efficiency. When realizing web projects with the CMS, companies largely rely on the longstanding experience of agencies. Nevertheless, for a collaboration a verification of corresponding developer qualifications is increasingly requested. In order to meet this demand, but also to meet the own expectations as one of the leading Drupal agencies in Germany and as official Drupal Commerce Delivery Partner, Cocomore has certified three of their employees through Acquia. Cocomore is therefore the first German agency whose developers have received an official certification for their Drupal 8 know-how.

The Cloud platform Acquia (www.acquia.com) provides an extensive certification program for the most recent version of the CMS, the "Acquia Certified Developer – Drupal 8 Exam". Upon successful completion the skills of a Drupal developer are confirmed in the areas of web concepts, site building, front end development (theming), and back end development (coding).

You can find more information about the certification program at <https://www.acquia.com/customer-success/learning-services/acquia-certified-developer-drupal-8-exam-blueprint>.
